Housing Authority - County of Los Angeles

September 27, 2006

TO: Housing Commissioners
FROM:  for Carlos Jackson, Executive Director

SUBJECT: ASSEMBLY BILL 1234 ETHICS TRAINING

A new law, Assembly Bill (AB) 1234, which became effective January 1, 2006, requires the County to provide ethics training to elected County officials, members of certain County commissions, and any County employee designated by the County to receive such training. Specifically, each covered individual must be provided at least two hours of training by January 1, 2007, and every two years thereafter. Members of commissions who receive any type of stipend, compensation or reimbursement for travel, mileage, and other actual and necessary expenses are required to take this training.

County Counsel has designed a training program which covers the required curriculum including specific County laws and regulations. The topics include general ethical principles, conflict of interest, open meeting requirements, gift and travel restrictions, use of public resources for personal or political purposes, and competitive bidding requirements for public contracts.

The training will be conducted by County Counsel, with assistance from Department of Human Resources (DHR), who is also responsible for tracking completion of the training.

We recognize that some of you may also be required to complete this training due to positions you hold with another public entity and that you may have already received the required training from that entity. In that situation, we need documentation of the date you completed the training and the entity that provided the training since the law requires the County to maintain a record of compliance by its officials.

To schedule your attendance please make your selection by completing the bottom of page two and submit your form during the September 27, 2006, Housing Commission meeting. The Community Development Commission's departmental coordinator will make appropriate arrangements and forward you a confirmation of your scheduled training.

If you have any questions please contact Lourdes Moreno at (323) 890-7405 or by email to Lourdes.Moreno@lacdc.org.

We appreciate your cooperation in meeting the new statutory requirement.

Project Vision

By JULIA VITULLO-MARTIN

August 18, 2006; Page A14

Public housing is urban government's largest orphan. It is an unloved recipient of tens of billions of dollars in funds, poured over decades by the federal government into housing projects in just about every city in the country. Neither the Republicans nor the Democrats want much to do with it anymore, and as a result physical plants are deteriorating while operating deficits soar. This failed experiment in government-financed, -built, -owned and -operated housing is over, yet the projects continue to house millions of Americans.

In the midst of this decay, however, is huge opportunity. Hundreds of old projects stand on valuable real estate, making them potential beneficiaries of the great urban comeback. But the authorities that own them must have the vision to see these prospects -- and few do.

Take New York City. Its real-estate market is so robust that even sections like Morrisania in the South Bronx, once nominated by Jimmy Carter as the worst neighborhood in America, are again thriving. Since 1987, the city government has spent over $130 million on South Bronx restoration, with the result that hardworking households and small businesses have returned to the blocks once destroyed by arson and despair.

Yet looming high above the pretty new houses, retail corridors and well-tended parks are three of the ugliest buildings in New York: the immense Morrisania Air Rights public-housing projects, completed in 1981 on 5.38 acres constructed over the sunken roadway that leads to the George Washington Bridge. When asked if the New York City Housing Authority had any intention of freeing the neighborhood of these hulking monuments by tearing them down, a high-ranking NYCHA official said, "No. We're not Atlanta."

Precisely. NYCHA is trapped in old-style, mammoth public housing, proud that it has only demolished one major building since 1972. NYCHA oversees 2,691 residential buildings that are scattered throughout the five boroughs, including in many neighborhoods that are now doing well despite the projects in their midst. Manhattan's booming Upper West Side, where new residential construction routinely sells for $1,400 per square foot, has over 20 projects, worth hundreds of millions of dollars -- not that NCYHA would dream of doing the market calculations.

Meanwhile the Atlanta Housing Authority, ranked in the early 1990s as the nation's fifth largest authority and the seventh most troubled, has been following the opposite course since 1996 -- demolishing its old projects and replacing them with attractive one- and two-family townhouses built in vernacular architecture.

But striking as the new houses are, they're not Atlanta's real innovation. "We are not making a nicer box," says Renée Glover, AHA's president and CEO. "We are intentionally creating a market-rate community with a seamless affordable component. We work with private-sector development partners who have knowhow, expertise and access to financial capital. Our projects are driven, owned and managed by the private sector."

Ms. Glover has been systematically demolishing the old projects, which she calls toxic, and replacing them with normal-looking neighborhoods, made up of 40% market-rate tenants and homeowners, 40% former public housing tenants who meet stringent new qualifications, and 20% low-income tenants.

All of her new housing is oversubscribed, a far cry from the situation when she took over as executive director of the AHA in September 1994. An assessment of the agency at that time showed that over half of AHA's apartments -- some 5,000 units -- were vacant. It had an uncollected rent rate of over 25%. Maintenance was abysmal, with the agency needing an average of 60 days to complete routine work orders. AHA scored an appalling 39 out of 100 under HUD's Public Housing Management Assessment Program. This was overseen by a "bloated and untrained employee force," in Ms. Glover's words, of about 1,300. Today, AHA's vacancy rate is below 1%, as is its uncollected rent rate. Routine work orders take 48 hours, and the backlog of 12,000 orders has been eliminated. It scored a perfect 100 in HUD's assessment. Its work force has been cut down to around 325 "well-trained and motivated professionals," says Ms. Glover.

To the naked eye, AHA's developments are indistinguishable from adjoining communities. Ms. Glover partnered with private developers, leveraging small amounts of government money with far larger sums of private investment. She demolished the downtown Techwood/Clark Howell Homes, two of the country's first public-housing projects, and built Centennial Place with $42.5 million in federal Hope VI revitalization funds and about $2 billion in private investment. (Hope VI was initiated by the first Bush administration, strongly supported by the Clinton administration, and opposed by the current administration.)

Similarly, she demolished the Perry Homes, three miles northwest of downtown Atlanta, and replaced them with what will be the AHA's largest development, the West Highlands project, which combines 570 apartments with an 18-hole, PGA-level golf course designed by Jack Nicklaus. She used $25 million in federal revitalization and demolition funds and $444 million in private investment.

AHA requires that all tenants between the ages of 18 and 65, except for the disabled, be employed, or be enrolled in job training or in school. "Residents must engage in an activity that will grow them out of the need for subsidy," says Ms. Glover. The result: Employment is way up (from 13% of residents in 1994 to 71% today) and crime is way down. Crime overall in Atlanta's public housing developments is down 76%, according to a Brookings Institution study released last year.

What's more, private development is springing up all around the former AHA projects, showing that private investment will readily enter once what Ms. Glover calls "residential brownfields" are removed. Centennial's neighborhood, which includes the Georgia Institute of Technology, Bell South headquarters, All Saints Church and should never have been a brownfield, is "on fire" today, says a developer. Retail and commercial services are springing up in an area that long had none. Though ferociously opposed by the Board of Education, Ms. Glover set up Atlanta's first charter school in 1997, Centennial Place Elementary, which now has some of the highest standardized test scores in the entire school system -- even though it receives only 60% of the funding of regular public schools.

What AHA is doing is entirely different from previous reform efforts because AHA does not intend to "manage" better public housing -- it's getting rid of public housing. For the sake of both public housing residents and their neighborhoods, let's hope that other big city authorities follow, starting with New York.

With Section 8 fraud, no projects needed

This story appeared in the Antelope Valley Press on Thursday, September 21, 2006.

TODAY'S EDITORIAL - There's a rumor - call it a suburban legend - that has been going around for at least a couple of years that claims that the Nickerson Gardens housing project - or some other Los Angeles housing project - is being closed and the residents relocated to Lancaster.

It is not true.

Still, the rumor persists, so Mayor Henry Hearn submitted a Viewpoint article for the Valley Press seeking to quell the rumor.

The mayor is accurate that the rumor is false. But what the mayor and other city leaders seem oblivious to is why the rumor persists.

People believe the "Nickerson Gardens moves north" myth because Lancaster is willing host to 1,885 Section 8 government-subsidized houses. There're another 1,200 or so in Palmdale.

With 1,885 Section 8 houses - and stories every week about fraud in subsidized housing - is it any wonder people are ready to believe there's more subsidized housing on the way?

Readers - who, after all, are just citizens - object less to the concept of subsidized housing than they dread the collateral that comes with such programs: an influx of creeps.

People do not generally mind new neighbors. Rightfully, people abhor bad neighbors.

Valley Press readers spelled it out for the mayor in their letters to the editor following Sunday's publication of the Viewpoint article "There is no Nickerson Gardens master plan."

We quote from Hollie Reynolds of Lancaster: Mayor Hearn "stated that no L.A. housing projects are coming to Lancaster. Nice try, but we already have L.A. housing projects in Lancaster. They are just called something else - Section 8 housing."

From Eric Patton of Lancaster: "News flash for Hearn: The Valley is one big L.A.

housing project. Thanks to the L.A. County Housing Authority and their horribly flawed Section 8 program, Lancaster and Palmdale are nothing but a series of smaller 'projects.'

"So don't go patting yourself on the back too hard there, Mr. Hearn. While you may have squashed the vicious rumor that we will be breaking ground on any major public housing project this month, we still have hundreds of smaller projects spread throughout the Valley, and that's not a rumor, it's a fact."

People hear a rumor that the city leaders are selling them out, leaving their community vulnerable to an influx of bad neighbors and criminals, and they think, "sounds plausible."

When the leaders of both cities straddling Avenue M failed to stop California State Prison Los Angeles County in Lancaster from moving in, the momentum got going the wrong way. The very affordability that makes the Valley an attraction for young families also made it a target for the scum of society to exploit.

It is important that these scum be deprived of their "privileges."

As a matter of logic, and the law, city leaders tell us that we must have "affordable housing."

Palmdale and Lancaster have responded to that with some of their initiatives on mobile-home parks. And then we have Section 8.

In its intent, it is like a lot of the federally subsidized "feel-good" programs. Help people with a handout. Help the elderly, the borderline indigent, help people with physical challenges.

Except that what happens is the predators quickly learn how to game and exploit the situation. What a deal! Pony up 300 to 500 bucks and let "Uncle Sugar" from the federal government throw in another 1,500 or so. Sweet!

The Section 8 lure is like the beacon of Lady Liberty for crooks. Bring us your friends, your relatives, your homeboys, drug dealers, sex offenders and gangsters.

To stem this tide that is making the Valley's two big cities brim over with bad neighbors, it becomes a matter of enforcing the laws and regulations that are already on the books. Shut down the subsidies for these predators.

Then do what Los Angeles Police Chief William J. Bratton is succeeding at doing in the safer city of Los Angeles "down below." Make the climate so inhospitable they go somewhere else.

That's a good way to chill the public-housing-scandal rumor.

Section 8 investigators active in Littlerock area

This story appeared in the Antelope Valley Press on Monday, September 18, 2006.

By VERONICA ROCHA
Valley Press Staff Writer

LITTLEROCK - Three homes are under investigation in connection with possible Section 8 violations, a Los Angeles County Housing Authority investigator says.

The homes under investigation have moderate violations, investigator Lee Derrico told Littlerock residents during a Thursday night Town Council meeting.

Derrico, who worked on the cases and spoke about them with a Sheriff's Department unit that handles Littlerock cases, said most alleged Section 8 violations, such as those in the three homes under investigation, start off as allegations he must investigate.

"I am going to go in there and evaluate it based on what I am presented and then make a determination based on what is appropriate," he said.

About 18 Section 8 vouchers are being used in Littlerock, he said.

"We have been pretty active out here for the last four years and we have had several cases out here," Derrico said.

The Section 8 program is aimed at helping people who are seeking employment and education find a place to live through rent subsidy. Section 8 qualifiers are determined by income and the number of people living in one home.

"We have a lot of folks who use the program for that reason, and then we have folks who abuse the program just like any other program out there," Derrico said.

Section 8 qualifiers pay 30% of the monthly rent and the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, or HUD, pays the rest. The property owner, Derrico said, must be willing to rent a home or apartment to a qualified rent subsidy tenant with a Section 8 voucher.

"Every person that is contracted by this program has to live by the rules set forth," he said. That includes property owners, he added.

About 3,200 Section 8 vouchers are currently active in the Valley, Derrico said, with the majority in Lancaster, he said.

"Everyone that comes into our area has to be pre-screened in order to qualify in our voucher program in Los Angeles County," he said.

About 50,000 Section 8 vouchers are active throughout the county, he said.

The county has about eight housing authority investigators, including three who handle Valley cases, Derrico said.

In the Valley, 14 privately owned buildings have direct contracts with HUD. "They're like their own mini-housing authority," he said.

Derrico asked Littlerock residents in attendance to report any possible Section 8 program violations to authorities.

"You know who belongs in your neighborhood and who doesn't," he said. "We could all work together collectively and make our community a better place."

Derrico warned residents, however, to not conclude that people who use Section 8 often violate the law.

"Just 'cause folks are on Section 8, it doesn't make them bad people," Derrico said. "A lot of people that are on this program are actually good and contributing people in our community. They're just using the program to get back on their feet."

No L.A. housing projects coming to Lancaster

When rumors fly around a community, they can do a lot of damage, even when they are totally untrue. That's been the case in recent months as an oft-repeated rumor about public housing has been flying around the Antelope Valley.

Let me state it unequivocally: Los Angeles is not moving any of its public housing projects to Lancaster or anywhere else in the Antelope Valley.

Let me repeat that: Los Angeles is not moving any of its public housing projects to Lancaster or anywhere else in the Antelope Valley.

Residents have been calling county and city officials recently, in a state of agitation because they've "heard" that there is a plan to move all the people in Los Angeles' Nickerson Gardens and/or Jordan Downs to an undisclosed location in Lancaster. They say they've "heard" all the gang activity centered in these projects will invade Lancaster. There are all kinds of explanations of where the callers have "heard" these rumors.

I can't say this strongly enough, but this same rumor has run the rounds many times over the years, and there is no truth to it at all. Perhaps some factual background information will help clear this up once and for all.

Nickerson Gardens is a 1054-unit public housing apartment complex in the Watts section of south Los Angeles. Built in 1955, it consists of 156 buildings with townhouse-style units ranging in size from one to five bedrooms. The complex is owned and managed by the Housing Authority of the City of Los Angeles.

Nickerson Gardens is the largest public housing development west of the Mississippi River, occupying the blocks northeast of the corner of Imperial Highway and Central Avenue. It is on the border of Watts and Compton. It is the recognized birthplace of the Bounty Hunter Watts Blood gang.

Jordan Downs is a 700-unit public housing apartment complex in Watts. It consists of 103 buildings with townhouse-style units ranging in size from one to five bedrooms and also is owned and managed by the Housing Authority of the City of Los Angeles. It is the home of the Grape Street Watts Crips and is surrounded by the Southside Watts Vario Grape Street 13 Tiny Wyoos.

My staff has verified with the Housing Authority of Los Angeles that neither Nickerson Gardens nor Jordan Downs apartment complexes are closing, and none of the tenants are being relocated to Lancaster.

The Housing Authority of Los Angeles owns and manages approximately 16 public housing apartment complexes in Los Angeles. L.A. has an acute shortage of affordable housing as the pace of building entry-level apartments has failed to keep up with the huge numbers of recent immigrants and working poor. The city probably will spend tens of millions of dollars in its new affordable housing trust fund mostly for the building of new apartments, according to an advisory committee report.

Therefore, they will not be eliminating housing, but creating more affordable housing in Los Angeles.

These rumors can change how we feel about our community in a negative way. There are many truths that can have that same impact in a positive way. Combat the rumor mill by spreading word of the things you love about Lancaster. Whether it is our beautiful desert sunsets or our warm and caring residents, we all enjoy dozens of great qualities of our community.

Hearn is mayor of Lancaster and pastor of Living Stone Cathedral of Worship in Littlerock.

Rental subsidy program gets millions more

BY RICK ORLOV, Staff Writer
LA Daily News

NORTH HOLLYWOOD - More than 2,000 homeless people will receive financial help to find permanent housing under a $29 million expansion of the Section 8 rental-subsidy program, Mayor Antonio Villaraigosa announced Monday.

The program will fund shelter as well as social services for the homeless residents. The city already has 51,000 families receiving Section 8 subsidies.

"Every night in Los Angeles, there are 45,000 people sleeping on the streets," Villaraigosa said, standing in front of a new six-unit apartment complex of two- and three-bedroom units. "One-fourth of those are women with children who have no place to go because the shelters are full. This is a way to give them a chance.

"All these people need is a second chance," he said. "I'm someone who was helped by a second chance and we have to give people an opportunity to get back on their feet."

Villaraigosa also announced the creation of the Skid Row Families Demonstration Project, a city-county partnership to move 500 homeless families into neighborhoods away from downtown's Skid Row. The city will contribute $18 million, while the county will pay $6 million.

Thirteen nonprofit agencies are working with the city, helping families apply for the vouchers and supporting them after they move in.

The city's Section 8 program was launched in 1991 but was suspended in 2005 after an audit found that local officials had issued more vouchers than authorized. Rudy Montiel, the city's Housing Authority director, said the program was reinstated in April and is processing applications.

Councilman Bill Rosendahl, who is a member of the City Council's Ad Hoc Committee on the Homeless, praised Villaraigosa's efforts in providing $100 million for each of the past two years in the Affordable Housing Trust Fund.

"This is where the rubber meets the road," Rosendahl said. "Part of the reason I ran for the City Council was to do something about this. I was tired of stepping over people who are living in cardboard boxes. This is a national tragedy that all of us need to work on to resolve."

Villaraigosa said the expanded Section 8 program is designed to take the homeless from Skid Row in downtown and move them to apartments around the city. Aides said the locations are constantly being revised based on the willingness of apartment owners to accept Section 8 tenants.

Tanya Tull of Beyond Shelters, a homeless-advocacy group, said the expanded program will make it easier for groups such as hers to find transitional housing as well as provide the needed social programs.

Little Gain Seen in Affordable Housing in L.A.

The razing, converting of rent-controlled units almost equals the building of new ones, study says.

By Nancy Cleeland
Times Staff Writer

September 7, 2006

The city of Los Angeles has made little headway in expanding the supply of housing for low- and middle-income residents because old affordable units have been destroyed almost as quickly as new ones have been built, according to a new study.

The analysis, to be released today by the Southern California Assn. of Non-Profit Housing, is likely to fuel an increasingly heated debate about housing and gentrification in the city.

Using municipal and U.S. census data, the study by the trade association of nonprofit housing developers found that 12,800 affordable rental units were built through city incentive programs since 2001, while 11,000 older rent-controlled apartments were either torn down or converted to condominiums.

The study found that the loss rate has accelerated, far outpacing new construction since 2005.

Market-rate rents in Los Angeles grew by about 30% during the same five years, to $1,770 a month, according to RealFacts, a Bay Area real estate consulting firm that surveys large apartment complexes.

Paul Zimmerman, director of the association that produced the report, said it showed the need for a comprehensive housing strategy in Los Angeles.

"Housing is like water," he said. "You need a production pipeline and a preservation strategy. Unless you have both you're not going to take a dent out of the problem."

The association backs a moratorium on the demolition or conversion of rent-controlled apartments. Los Angeles City Councilmen Bill Rosendahl and Alex Padilla have proposed moratoriums for their own districts. Their proposals haven't drawn much support from colleagues, and Rosendahl's is now before a committee.

"I like incentives better than requirements. This is America," said Councilman Herb Wesson, who is the chairman of the housing committee that has the bill.

He added later, "I gave Mr. Rosendahl my word I would talk to him and listen to his argument. But I'll be honest, this problem is a city issue and I'm not big on piecemeal approaches."

Rosendahl's 11th District, on the Westside, has lost more than 4,000 rent-controlled units since 2001 — one-third of the citywide total, according to the analysis.

"I want to take a time out and come up with other strategies," Rosendahl said. "It's not fair that the ocean and fresh air be just for the rich."

He said he expected his moratorium to pass this year, despite opposition.

Wesson recently proposed his own strategy, which the full council adopted last month. The measure created a task force to look at comprehensive solutions and a committee to study the 1978 rent control law that limits rent increases in older buildings.

Developers and business leaders, who acknowledge a severe shortage of affordable housing, have argued for market-based solutions that encourage more dense housing along transportation corridors.

"At minimum you have to develop the opportunity for the private sector to supply those affordable units. That's at least half the battle. Beyond that, the marketplace will dictate where such profitability resides," said Stuart Gabriel, director of the USC Lusk Center for Real Estate. "From an economic perspective, rent control is not always a good long-run solution in the sense that it does not result in significant added supply of affordable units.... We need to turn our attention to a series of incentive structures and programs that go beyond rent control."

Gabriel saw the results of the analysis differently.

"The fact that we're even able to remain at the level of prior years should be viewed as a positive outcome, given market forces that make it nearly impossible to develop affordable housing," he said.

Zimmerman said affordability in Los Angeles has been shrinking for 25 years in a largely unfettered market.

"I don't trust the market," he said. "If we had a functioning market, it would be producing housing that is affordable to people at different income levels. But because of macroeconomic factors, the market is only producing high-end product now."

ID thief convicted on 7 felony counts

By LISA WAHLA HOWARD

Valley Press Staff Writer

It started out simply: the Palmdale Water District had shut the water off at a home receiving a Section 8 voucher, and Section 8 investigator Gary Brody was notified.

The ensuing investigation led to two identity theft victims and the conviction this week of Tovarrie La Shaun Washington, who was convicted in a jury trial Wednesday of seven felony counts related to burglary, fraud and identity theft, law enforcement authorities said.

Washington, 33, has lost her housing benefit but will still have a taxpayer-funded home. Now in custody in county jail, she faces state prison time based on her conviction and violating the felony probation sentence she received following a 2002 arrest for fraud.

"The district attorney is going to ask for seven years due to her multiple victims and the sophistication of the crime," said Palmdale sheriff's Detective Mark Machanic, who led a monthlong investigation in the case. "Hopefully they'll give her the maximum."

Homes receiving Section 8 benefits from the Los Angeles County Housing Authority must have a valid water connection, Machanic said, for health and safety reasons. The Housing Authority pays most of the low-income recipient's rent with federal funding.

When the water was shut off to the home, in the 38400 block of Division Street, Brody was informed and learned the water hookup was in the name of a Rhonda Eason, and a fraudulent credit card had been used to pay for service. In addition, a warrant search revealed a traffic warrant issued to a Shannon Crosby, also to the same address.

"I thought that was a lot of people, and maybe some unauthorized tenants, but I didn't know she was using all those stolen identities," Brody said. "One thing snowballed into something else."

Because Washington was on felony probation, she had to agree to be searched, so Brody arranged a Section 8 compliance check.

When Brody and Machanic visited the home in late May, they discovered a 2004 Volkswagen Jetta in the garage with expired tags. The car was registered to the home's address, but to Crosby's name. The traffic citation was in Crosby's name, but the thumbprint the traffic officer obtained matched Washington's.

Further investigation revealed Crosby was an identity theft victim whose wallet was stolen from her Fontana home, and Washington purchased the car from a local car dealer using Crosby's identity. She used a fraudulent check for $1,800 as a down payment to buy the car, a dealership salesman testified last week in a jury trial at the Michael D. Antonovich Antelope Valley Courthouse.

The car was in repossession status because of a lack of payments, so deputies had the car towed. They also cited and released her for a misdemeanor warrant for driving under the influence.

"In June, after the investigation and we located the two victims, we were able to prove the car was purchased through identity theft," Machanic said. "When we searched the house again, we located a check from Bank of America in the name of Shannon Crosby, which showed she opened up a fraudulent checking account."

Crosby traveled from her new home in Arizona to testify in the case, as did Eason, the Los Angeles resident whose identity was used by Washington to sign up for water service.

"She gave a bad check (to pay for water service), and then a fraudulent credit card," Machanic said. "When you're an identity thief, you try to get everything for free."

Washington is scheduled to be sentenced Oct. 4. Her public defender could not be reached Thursday for comment.

Remedies sought for housing crisis

By Jim Steinberg Staff Writer
San Gabriel Valley Tribune

The state of California is exploring the possibility of creating a state-sponsored insurance fund for affordable housing, according to the director of the California Department of Housing and Community Development.

"Housing developers are paying unprecedented premiums for construction liability insurance," Director Lynn Jacobs said this week.

Jacobs spoke to about 300 attendees of the Minority Housing Conference on Wednesday at the San Bernardino Hilton. The event was sponsored by the Building Industry Association's Baldy View Chapter.

Conference speaker Dalila Sotelo, senior vice president of McCormack, Baron, Salazar, said liability insurance for an 84-home project in the East Bay area was nearly $1 million.

And that expense was backed into the price of the housing.

Jacobs proposals would seek to remedy that source of the state's sky-high housing costs.

Among other programs, the state is exploring an insurance fund for affordable housing and for in-fill housing.

California ranks 49 out of the 50 states in terms of housing affordability, Jacobs said.

"To help debunk the myth that housing does not pay for itself," Jacobs proposed a statewide comprehensive study to include a city-by-city analysis of property tax revenues, fees and retail sales impacts of housing.

"Financial institutions and universities will be natural partners for this," she said.

Noting that prevailing wage rules add about 25 percent to the cost of a project, Jacobs said "we should be working more closely with our construction unions to have them be part of the solution to the state's housing crisis. So we are going to be exploring the possibility of a union-supported fund for affordable fund for housing.

"Construction unions experience labor shortages because of inadequate housing for their own members. I believe they are interested in investing in our economy in that way," she said.

"Local governments indicate that California's housing crisis is one of their primary recruiting challenges when trying to hire public safety employees and the school district trying to hire teachers," she continued.

"We are going to be exploring the development of \ program to address this problem with perhaps special financing, other incentives, a master plan, some model houses and whatever we hear from you will help us reduce costs."

The state has an interest in the adequate supply of housing for its residents, she said, adding, "We have an economic interest, a public policy interest and a human interest."

Carlos Rodriguez, senior vice president of the BIA's Baldy View Chapter, called the conference "a first step in an ongoing dialogue" to come up with housing solutions.

REAL ESTATE REALITIES

What Is "Affordable" Housing?

A fuzzy old term adapts to the new era.

August 26, 2006

YOU PROBABLY DIDN'T REALIZE IT, but your home — your overpriced, over-leveraged Los Angeles home — became more affordable last week. Yes, you'll probably still have to stick to macaroni-and-cheese dinners if you want to make your mortgage payment every month. And no, that mid-century gem in the Hollywood Hills will still be out of reach, unless you win the lottery. But on paper, thanks to long-anticipated adjustments to the California Assn. of Realtors' housing affordability index, homeownership now appears to be more attainable for first-time buyers.

The association's affordability index is cited often. When a news article or affordable housing advocate mentions that some shockingly low number of households (say, 8% in Santa Barbara in 2005) were able to afford a median-priced home, the index is often behind the analysis. Developers lean on affordability index numbers to push for new projects; businesses sometimes look at them to determine whether relocating employees to California can pay off. And the affordability index has helped to fuel the housing frenzy, ratcheting up status anxiety by reminding us all that that most American of pursuits, homeownership, is sliding further from our grasp.

Before Thursday, however, the index applied 20-year-old assumptions to today's housing market. To compute affordability, the association assumed that purchasers were making 20% down payments, getting fixed-rate mortgages and spending no more than 30% of their incomes to finance their houses. These days, few buyers are that conservative—so the California Assn. of Realtors now assumes that first-time buyers make 10% down payments, secure adjustable-rate mortgages and devote 40% of their incomes to housing costs. (Different parameters, still to be determined, will measure affordability among repeat buyers.)

The new computation is more relevant. It also makes houses seem cheaper, just slightly. Last year, 14% of Los Angeles households made enough money to buy a median-priced house. In the second quarter of this year, 19% of first-time buyers made the cut to buy at 85% of the median price.

For some, it will be tempting to suggest that "more affordability," at least on paper, will keep the housing juggernaut rolling. For others, it will be tempting to wonder if this is more proof that the market is at its peak. Back in the '90s, eager equities investors began looking for new metrics, such as EBITDA — earnings before interest, taxes, depreciation and amortization — to justify their passion for buying stocks that were overpriced by all the usual measures.

Then again, that might be over-thinking things. The simple truth, as economists at the California Assn. of Realtors admit, is that the outlook remains bleak for buyers. According to the new figures, the median price for first-time buyers in Los Angeles was $489,860 in the second quarter of this year. The required income a family needs to afford a house at this price, according to the new criteria, is $100,320. In L.A., even an affordable home is still pretty expensive.

L.A. supes OK system that can detect welfare fraud

-- Troy Anderson
Inland Valley Daily Bulletin

Los Angeles County supervisors on Tuesday approved development of a $3 million computer system that will allow the welfare department to detect fraudulent overpayments and measure how its programs impact its 2 million recipients.

The new "data warehouse" will allow the Department of Public and Social Services to better detect fraud by comparing data now stored on a variety of computer systems.

"This is not a fraud system, per say. However, it enhances our ability to detect fraud by giving us the ability to compare all our programs and identify something that is inconsistent, and follow-up on that inconsistency," DPSS spokesman Shirley Christensen said.

The approval of the data warehouse follows June's grand jury report that found welfare recipients and their friends and relatives have defrauded taxpayers of $500 million a year. Grand jurors described county child-care programs for welfare recipients as an "ATM for thieves."

Prosecutors have also alleged that taxpayers are being defrauded by in-home care workers and recipients.

Home sales plunge statewide

L.A. County resists drop in house prices

BY GREGORY J. WILCOX, Staff Writer
LA Daily News

California's residential real estate sector continued wilting in July, with sales plunging 30 percent and the median price falling under the year-ago level in more than half the state's major markets, a trade association said Thursday.

Los Angeles County fared better, though, with the median price increasing an annual 6.8 percent to a record $581,140 even though sales declined 25.6 percent from their year-ago level, said the report from the California Association of Realtors.

Sales took substantial falls from a year ago in all 21 markets for which statistics were available, and only two recorded gains from June. The biggest drop, 50 percent, came in Monterey County and the smallest, 23.4 percent, was in Santa Cruz County.

Santa Barbara County's South Coast had the biggest annual price decline, 16.3 percent to $1.1 million, and sales there fell 27.2 percent.

Prices declined from June in 15 markets.

"I think we're seeing a significant correction in the market," said Leslie Appleton-Young, vice president and chief economist of the Los Angeles-based association.

"There's really a standoff right now (between buyers and sellers) that's resulting in a lower level of sales."

This is the ninth consecutive month of year-over-year sales declines. The percentage increase is big because the counts are being compared to record levels of a year ago, Appleton-Young said.

The percentage decline should moderate in the fall, because that is when the sales slide started.

"We're sort of meeting ourselves in the doorway (because) we had such high numbers a year ago," said John Karevoll, an analyst at market tracker DataQuick Information Systems.

"The picture today is one of relative balance. It's the picture of a year ago that was kind of off the charts."

The report showed that:

If the market matched July's pace for all of the year, there would be 453,980 sales statewide, which means this year would look a lot like 1997.

The median price of a house increased 5.1 percent from a year ago to $567,360 and was up 1.5 percent from June.

In Los Angeles County, the median price increased 0.2 percent from June and sales fell 16.4 percent month-to-month.

In the High Desert, which includes the Antelope Valley, the median price increased 11.5 percent to $333,330. Sales fell an annual 25.2 percent and were down 17.7 percent from June.

In the Inland Empire, the median price increased 6.8 percent to a record $409,090 even though sales plunged an annual 40 percent and were off 18 percent from June.

At the end of July, there was a 7.5 month supply of inventory, up from 2.9 months a year ago but well under the record 18.9 months in February 1991.

The median price increased in 72 percent, or 283 out of 393 cities and communities, from a year ago.

(Statistics for Ventura County were not available.)

In addition to high asking prices, rising interest rates also dragged down the market. During July, the 30-year fixed mortgage interest rate averaged 6.76, an 18.6 percent increase from a year ago, according to Freddie Mac.

The adjustable rates average soared an annual 31.6 percent in July to 5.79 percent.

"I think it's a much harder turn that people expected. You could almost call it the Three Bears kind of a turn. Some are saying hard, some are saying soft and some are in the middle," said Jack Kyser, chief economist at the Los Angeles County Economic Development Corp.

South Pasadena seniors ask city to halt evictions

By Cortney Fielding, Staff Writer
Pasadena Star-News

- Video: Golden Oaks Senior Apartments
- Photo Gallery: Golden Oaks Senior Apartment

PASADENA — Residents living in South Pasadena's only senior housing complex are demanding the city put a stop to a new owner's plans to turn their modest units into luxury apartments.

Eviction papers have already been sent out to a handful of occupants at the Golden Oaks Apartments at 1000 El Centro St. — including all who receive federal Section 8 housing assistance — explaining they will have to leave their homes by Oct. 1.

Those remaining, such as 86-year-old Peggy O'Neil, have received notice of rental increases of up to 33 percent.

O'Neil's rent would climb to $1,250 a month. On a Social Security budget, "It means I can't do anything foolish — like take a vacation," she said.

But while residents have said the new prices could force them from their units, the rents are expected to hit $2,200 per month when the building is renovated and a gym, library, movie theater and beauty salon are added.

Residents said the new amenities prove the building is no longer for them. "Some of the people here are 90 years old," said resident Jean Ackerman. "What do we need with a gym?" As for books, she noted that the city library is right across the street.

With few places to go in a city that doesn't subsidize affordable housing for seniors, about 40 Golden Oaks residents have joined together to demand the City Council stop the eviction, rental increase and renovation process until a deal can be reached.

But what the council can do is largely dependent on funding sources for the building, said Pasadena senior advocate Marvin Schachter.

A property title search performed by one of the residents indicates the building's original owners might have received money from the South Pasadena redevelopment agency, which could require it to retain a component of senior housing.

City authorities said it isn't clear whether that is the case. And if the redevelopment agency was involved, the agreement could have ended, leaving new owners completely within their rights to change the building.

Without rent control, the city cannot place a moratorium on the increases and evictions.

Last weekend, a small group of residents met with senior commissioners, council members and the building's owners.

Councilman Michael Cacciotti said the city asked owners to phase in new rents over a series of years — not months — and allow residents to stay in a manager's unit when their apartments are being renovated.

All residents have been told they will have to move out of the building when the inside of their units are renovated, although they said they have not been told when it will take place.

"We just ask that they have some compassion," Cacciotti said.

The owners, who did not return calls by press time, have until Oct. 4 to respond to the requests.

But not everyone has that long. Jesus Arellano's 90-year-old mother, Maria, must be out by Oct. 1. She receives less than $800 per month in Social Security, and Section 8 funding pays two-thirds of her housing costs.

The new owners will not accept her vouchers, and Arellano said trying to find a new place for his mother has been heartbreaking.

He said she was hit by a moving bus last year and is now unable to prepare meals for herself.

Arellano, his brother and daughter visit Maria three times a day in shifts and she must be relocated to somewhere near his Alhambra home. So far, he's found nothing in surrounding cities.

"They tell us there are waiting lists years long," he said.

Former South Pasadena mayor and Senior Commission member Dorothy Cohen said that the situation at Golden Oaks is all too common.

"These seniors are caught in the squeeze," Cohen said. "The owners want to upgrade their property. It's an unfortunate situation."

Plan to limit eminent domain too sweeping

Few Supreme Court decisions have triggered such unexpected fury as the 2005 ruling upholding the right of government to seize any home or business in the name of spurring economic development. On a 5-4 vote, justices held that New London, Conn., was not violating constitutional property rights guarantees when the city sought to seize and raze middle-class homes to clear the way for a big commercial and residential development — solely to increase its tax revenues.

The ruling was no surprise. Until 50 years ago, eminent domain was typically used to seize land (with just compensation) to build a school or police station or a project with a narrowly defined public purpose. Since then, however, courts have allowed government to use eminent domain for purposes of economic development.

At issue

■ Does Proposition 90 on California's November ballot go too far in restricting government agencies' ability to redevelop blighted areas?

Nevertheless, the New London case touched a nerve among the public and politicians. Since then, efforts to rein in eminent domain have begun in more than 30 states.

Unfortunately, the primary vehicle for reform in California is Proposition 90 — an initiative so sweeping that it appears to be the work of saboteurs trying to taint the eminent domain reform movement as radical and out of control.

The key problem with eminent domain in California stems from a passage in state law that declares only "blighted" property may be seized. The glitch: The law invites abuse because "blight" is so vaguely defined. The result: Many cities routinely designate healthy businesses and neighborhoods as blighted and thus subject to seizure.

But Proposition 90 goes far beyond mandating a rational definition of blight. Instead, it bans any use of eminent domain for economic development — even when there really is blight.

The initiative then veers into radical territory in two ways:

It declares the compensation for seized property must reflect the value of the project to be built on the site — meaning an astronomical increase in the compensation taxpayers must provide.

It requires that private property owners be fully compensated when any government regulation causes their property to lose value. Decisions on matters as mundane as traffic lights, parking meters and noise abatement could be argued as having negative effects on property value. The vagueness of the initiative suggests this is just what sponsors want — an atmosphere in which local officials contemplating basic questions of governance see legal peril and costly lawsuits at every turn.

So, while we hope those appalled by eminent domain abuses continue lobbying the Legislature for reform — Sen. Christine Kehoe, D-San Diego, is a key player on the issue — we hope that this dismay doesn't translate into support for Proposition 90. It is a radical overreach that would create vastly more problems than it would correct.

Affordable homes still scarce here

L.A. area toughest in U.S., national survey indicates

BY GREGORY J. WILCOX, Staff Writer
LA Daily News

The Los Angeles area remained the nation's least-affordable housing market for the seventh consecutive quarter in the April-through-June period, according to survey results released Tuesday.

And the 10 least-affordable large-market and small-market areas were all in California, said the National Association of Home Builders/Wells Fargo in its Housing Opportunity Index.

In the Los Angeles-Glendale-Long Beach area, just 1.9 percent of new and previously owned homes were affordable to those earning a median family income of $56,200. The median sales price during the period was $521,000.

The affordability was 1.7 percentage points less than in the year-ago period.

The Santa Ana-Anaheim-Irvine area was the second least affordable of areas of 500,000 or more residents. Of the homes sold, only 3.2 percent were affordable to those earning the area's median family income of $78,000. The median sales price was $630,000.

The dubious honor of being the 10th-least-affordable big market went to the Oxnard-Thousand Oaks area, where 8.1 percent of the homes sold were affordable to buyers earning the median income of $79,500. The median price was $586,000.

The survey tracked 199 markets and included the 10 most-affordable and 10 least-affordable markets in each of the two categories, with more or fewer than 500,000 residents. The bottom 10 of these were all in California.

Of the big markets, Indianapolis was the most affordable, with 87.4 percent of the homes sold within reach of families earning the median income of $65,100. The median sales price was $120,000.

Overall, Springfield, Ohio, was the most-affordable area in the second quarter, with 91.4 percent of the homes sold affordable to families earning the median income of $55,400. That's close to the median sales price of $85,000.

The index is not intended to show sales patterns in local markets, said Gopal Ahluwalia, staff vice president for research for the index.

"This index is not by any means an absolute measure. It's relative. It tells you how it changed over time," he said.

Ahluwalia.

This is the second report this month that shows affordability eroding in California.

Last week the California Association of Realtors rolled out its new index format that tracked first-time buyer status. It showed that affordability statewide was 23 percent in the second quarter versus 30 percent in the year-ago period.

In Los Angeles County, it was 19 percent for the second quarter this year versus 27 percent in same period of 2005.

The California Realtors measured the percentage of households that can afford the median-priced home in their area.

The old California format, including both new and repeat buyers, lagged the market by two months. The last one was issued in January. It showed that in November 2005, just 14 percent of state households could afford the median-priced home, while in Los Angeles County affordability was 11 percent. Since there is a new methodology in place, the old and new indexes cannot be compared.

John Karevoll, an analyst at DataQuick Information Systems, is not sure how accurately these indexes reflect buying activity. For example, these indexes have showed affordability sinking even as sales stayed near historically high levels.

"None of the so-called affordability or opportunity indexes we've seen the past few years have been able to track what's actually been happening," he said.

greg.wilcox@dailynews.com

(818) 713-3743

The index is based in part on the assumption that no more than 28 percent of a household's income can be used for the monthly mortgage payment. On that basis nationally, 40.6 percent of the homes sold were affordable to families earning $59,600.

But the housing market is in the midst of a big shift nationally, and in the Los Angeles area sales are well under year-ago levels and price appreciation has cooled.

Does this mean that the decline in affordability is at an end?

"If prices go down and interest rates stay steady, then affordability will definitely go up," said

Section 8 fraud investigation paying off

This story appeared in the Antelope Valley Press on Tuesday, August 15, 2006.

By LISA WAHLA HOWARD
Valley Press Staff Writer

Nearly 180 Palmdale residents faced losing their Section 8 vouchers from the Los Angeles County Housing Authority during the last 13 months because of various types of fraud, according to county records.

Palmdale officials are so pleased with the work, they're chipping in more money so investigator Gary Brody can work more hours in the city.

In March 2005, Palmdale began paying $25,000, with the county matching the figure through the office of Supervisor Michael D. Antonovich, whose 5th District includes the Antelope Valley. That paid for Brody to work 20 hours per week, with half the time allocated for the city and half allocated for county areas around the city.

Additional funding from Palmdale, which the Board of Supervisors is scheduled to approve today, will allow Brody to work 32 hours per week, with the extra time designated for the city.

"We increased our original agreement by $15,000, so now our Section 8 investigator works 32 hours per week," said Kelly Long, who works in the city's Public Safety Office. "We love him (Brody). It was probably one of the best things we ever could have done. That investigations team is phenomenal, but they're spread very thin across the county. That gives us a dedicated investigator so he can really take a look at the complaints."

Palmdale's contract with the county expires in March 2007, though Long said city leaders have "no desire" to cease the extra enforcement.

In Lancaster, between July 1, 2005, and July 31, 2006, 156 residents have been recommended for termination from the Section 8 program. The city contracts for a full-time investigator, in a similar arrangement with the county and Antonovich's office.

Throughout the entire Valley, 338 voucher holders were recommended for termination by the fraud investigators in the same time period.

Antonovich aide Norm Hickling said the partnership between the county and the local cities has been "very productive (and) outstanding," and the supervisor hopes to continue and expand the arrangement. Antonovich has recommended doubling the amount of money funding the local investigations, and the county and cities are in the process of determining how best to allocate additional funds.

Of the recommended terminations in the Antelope Valley, eight were overturned on appeal.

As of July 31, the county oversaw 3,137 housing vouchers in the Antelope Valley, including 1,885 in Lancaster and 1,168 in Palmdale and 84 in other areas of the Valley.

Honorable Housing Commissioners
Housing Authority of the County of Los Angeles
2 Coral Circle
Monterey Park, California 91755

Dear Commissioners:

APPROVE ONE-YEAR CONTRACTS TO PROVIDE
UNARMED SECURITY GUARD SERVICES (ALL DISTRICTS)

IT IS RECOMMENDED THAT YOUR COMMISSION:

1. Recommend that the Board of Commissioners find that the provision of unarmed security services at Housing Authority office buildings, construction sites, and housing developments, is exempt from the California Environmental Quality Act (CEQA), as described herein, because the activities will not have the potential for causing a significant effect on the environment.
2. Recommend that the Board of Commissioners approval and authorization for the Executive Director to execute one-year Contracts for Unarmed Security Guard Services (Contracts) with General Security Service, Inc., Command Security Corporation, and American Asset Protection, using the form of the attached standard contract, to provide regular unarmed security guard services at the Housing Authority's administrative offices in the cities of Santa Fe Springs and Lancaster, and as-needed unarmed security guard services at various housing sites throughout the County of Los Angeles, to be effective following approval as to form by County Counsel and execution by all parties; and authorize the Executive Director to use for this purpose a maximum aggregate amount of $160,000 for the first year of services, included in the Housing Authority's approved Fiscal Year 2006-2007 budget.
3. Recommend that the Board of Commissioners authorize the Executive Director to execute Contract amendments, following approval as to form by County Counsel, as necessary to incorporate specific sites, site-specific work requirements, compensation amounts, and other necessary terms and conditions; and authorize the Executive Director to extend the time of performance for a maximum of two years, in one-year increments, and to use for this purpose funds approved through the Housing Authority's annual budget process, not exceeding $160,000 annually for the three Contracts.

4. Recommend that the Board of Commissioners authorize the Executive Director to use for unforeseen security needs during year one of the Contracts, a maximum of $40,000 included in the Housing Authority's approved Fiscal Year 2006-2007 budget; and to request through the annual budget process an equal amount of annual funding for unforeseen security needs for years two and three of the Contracts, if extended.

PURPOSE/JUSTIFICATION OF RECOMMENDED ACTION:

The purpose of this action is to enter into Contracts to provide unarmed security guard services at the Housing Authority's Santa Fe Springs and Lancaster Offices and at other properties that are rented, owned, or managed by the Housing Authority.

FISCAL IMPACT/ FINANCING:

There is no impact on the County general fund. The aggregate amount that may be expended annually for all three contracts will not exceed $160,000, or a maximum of $480,000 if the one-year Contracts are extended for an additional two years.

Contingency funds for unforeseen security needs for all three contracts will not exceed $40,000 per year, or a maximum of $120,000 if the one-year Contracts are extended for an additional two years.

Funds are included in the Housing Authority's approved Fiscal Year 2006-2007 budget for the first year of services and contingency needs. If the Contracts are extended, additional funding will be provided through the annual budget process.

FACTS AND PROVISIONS/LEGAL REQUIREMENTS:

The Housing Authority on an ongoing basis requires the services of unarmed security guards to patrol Housing Authority office buildings, construction sites, and housing developments, and to provide as-needed unarmed security guards during emergencies.

The attached sample Contracts define the basic scope of services to be provided by the security firms. As necessary, the Contracts will be amended to incorporate specific sites, compensation amounts, terms and a detailed scope of work for each location.

Based on the results of the procurement process, General Security Services, Inc., has been selected as the primary service provider for both regular and as-needed services. Regular services include fire watch patrols and foot and vehicle patrols at office buildings, construction sites and various housing developments. As-needed services include responding to special needs, such as on-site emergencies.

In the event that General Security Services, Inc., is unable to provide security services at the time needed or if flexibility is required for the delivery of services, Command Security Corporation and American Asset Protection will be available to provide identical services for the Housing Authority.

The initial Contracts with each firm will be for one year. The Contracts may be extended for a maximum of two years, in one-year increments, subject to the availability of funds and satisfactory performance.

The proposed services are being federally funded, and are not subject to the requirements of the Greater Avenues for Independence (GAIN) and General Relief Opportunity for Work (GROW) Programs implemented by the County of Los Angeles. Instead, the contractors must comply with Section 3 of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1968, as amended, which requires that employment and other economic opportunities generated by certain U.S. Housing and Urban Development (HUD) assistance be directed to low- and very low-income persons, particularly to persons who are recipients of HUD housing assistance.

The contractors must also comply with the Housing Authority's Living Wage Program (LWP), which requires that the contractors pay their employees no less than the applicable hourly living wage rate, as set forth in the LWP, for the employees' services provided under the Contracts.

The attached sample Contract has been reviewed by County Counsel.

CONTRACTING PROCESS:

On July 17, 2006, an RFP process was initiated to identify firms to provide unarmed security guard services for the Housing Authority. Notices were mailed to 91 vendors identified from the Housing Authority's vendor list. Announcements appeared in eight local newspapers and on the County's WebVen website. A copy of the RFP was also posted on the Commission's website. On July 25, 2006, thirty contractors participated on in the Pre-Proposal Conference. Six proposals were received on August 3, 2006.

One proposal did not meet the minimum RFP requirements and was determined non-responsive. A staff committee evaluated the remaining five proposals. The proposal submitted by General Security Service, Inc. received the highest evaluation score, Command Security Corporation received the second highest score and American Asset Protection received the third highest score.

The Summary of Outreach Activities is provided as Attachment A.

ENVIRONMENTAL DOCUMENTATION:

This action is exempt from the provisions of the National Environmental Policy Act pursuant to 24 Code of Federal Regulations, Part 58, Section 58.34(a)(3), because it involves administrative activities that will not have a physical impact or result in any physical changes to the environment. The action is not subject to the provisions of the California Environmental Quality Act (CEQA) pursuant to State CEQA Guidelines 15060(c)(3) and 15378 because it is not defined as a project under CEQA and does not have the potential for causing a significant effect on the environment.

IMPACT ON CURRENT PROGRAMS:

The proposed Contracts will provide needed unarmed security guard services for the Housing Authority's office buildings and various housing developments.

Respectfully submitted,

for CARLOS JACKSON
Executive Director

County of Los Angeles

Monterey Park, California 91755

Dear Commissioners:

APPROVE CONSTRUCTION CONTRACT FOR WALL FURNACE INSTALLATION AT THE HARBOR HILLS FAMILY HOUSING DEVELOPMENT (4)

IT IS RECOMMENDED THAT YOUR COMMISSION:

1. Recommend that the Board of Commissioners find that the installation of 298 wall furnaces at the Harbor Hills family housing development, located at 26607 South Western Avenue in the City of Lomita, is exempt from the provisions of the California Environmental Quality Act (CEQA), as described herein, because the work includes activities that will not have the potential for causing a significant effect on the environment.
2. Recommend that the Board of Commissioners approve the award of a Construction Contract in the amount of $481,505 between the Housing Authority and Sun Mechanical Company, to complete asbestos pipe abatement and wall heater installation at the subject property; and authorize the Executive Director of the Housing Authority to execute the Construction Contract and all related documents, to be effective upon the issuance of the Notice to Proceed, which will not exceed 30 days following the date of Board approval.
3. Recommend that the Board of Commissioners authorize the Executive Director to use a total of $481,505 in Community Block Grant Funds (CDBG) Float Loan funds, previously approved and included in the Housing Authority's Fiscal Year 2006-2007 budget, for the purpose described herein; and authorize the Executive Director to approve Construction Contract change orders not exceeding $120,377 for unforeseen project costs, using the same source of funds.

PURPOSE/JUSTIFICATION OF RECOMMENDED ACTION:

The purpose of this action is to award a Construction Contract to replace 298 wall furnaces the Harbor Hills family housing development.

FISCAL IMPACT/FINANCING:

There is no impact on the County general fund. The Housing Authority will fund the improvements with $481,505 in previously approved CDBG Float Loan funds, included in the approved Fiscal Year 2006-2007 budget. A 25 percent contingency, in the amount of $120,376, is also being set aside for unforeseen costs, using the same source of funds. The in-house estimate to complete the work is $510,000.

FACTS AND PROVISIONS/LEGAL REQUIREMENTS:

On May 25, 2004, your Board approved a CDBG Float Loan between the County of Los Angeles and the Housing Authority to provide funding for site and building improvements at six public housing developments, including the purchase and installation of wall furnaces at the Harbor Hills family housing development. The housing development includes 45 buildings and one-, two-, and three-bedroom units. The contract will allow for the installation of wall furnace units, which will replace outdated heating equipment in every apartment.

The scope of work includes asbestos pipe abatement in 200 units; the removal and proper disposal of 298 furnaces; and the installation of 298 new furnaces. The existing furnaces are over 10 years old and require frequent repairs. Also, the existing furnaces are discontinued models and parts are difficult to obtain. The dimensions and capabilities of the new furnaces match the existing furnaces and no retrofitting will be required. It is anticipated that the entire project will be completed within 120 calendar days following the Notice to Proceed.

The improvements are being federally funded, and are not subject to the requirements of the Greater Avenues for Independence (GAIN) Program or the General Relief Opportunity for Work (GROW) Program implemented by the County of Los Angeles. Instead, Sun Mechanical Company will comply with Section 3 of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1968, as amended, which requires that employment and other economic opportunities generated by certain HUD assistance be directed to low- and very low-income persons, particularly to persons who are recipients of HUD housing assistance.

The Construction Contract has been approved as to form by County Counsel and executed by Sun Mechanical Company.

ENVIRONMENTAL DOCUMENTATION:

Pursuant to Title 24 of the Code of Federal Regulations, Section 58.35 (a)(3)(ii), the proposed work is excluded from the National Environmental Policy Act (NEPA) because it involves activities that will not alter existing environmental conditions. In addition, it is not subject to the provisions of the California Environmental Quality Act (CEQA), pursuant to State CEQA Guidelines Section 15301, because it does not have the potential for causing a significant effect on the environment.

The environmental review record for this project is available for viewing by the public during regular business hours at the Housing Authority's main office located at 2 Coral Circle, Monterey Park.

CONTRACTING PROCESS:

On July 31, 2006, the Housing Authority initiated an outreach to identify a contractor to complete the work at the subject property. Invitations for Bids were mailed to 545 contractors identified from the Housing Authority's vendor list. Advertisements also appeared in seven newspapers and on the County WebVen website. Five bid packages were requested and distributed.

On August 24, 2006, three bids were received and formally opened. The lowest bid, submitted by M3 Services, Inc, did not have the required license for the project and was determined non-responsive. Sun Mechanical Company, the second lowest bidder, was determined to be the most responsive and is being recommended for the Construction Contract award.

The Summary of Outreach Activities is provided as Attachment A.

IMPACT ON CURRENT PROJECT:

The installation of the wall furnaces will upgrade and help preserve the housing development, and provide residents with properly functioning heating units.

Respectfully submitted,

for CARLOS JACKSON
Executive Director

Honorable Housing Commissioners
Housing Authority of the County of Los Angeles
2 Coral Circle
Monterey Park, California 97155

Dear Commissioners:

APPROVE HEALTH PLAN CHANGES (ALL DISTRICTS)

IT IS RECOMMENDED THAT YOUR COMMISSION:

1. Recommend that the Board of Commissioners authorize the Executive Director to replace the Blue Cross of California (Blue Cross) Point of Service (POS) employee medical plan with a Preferred Provider Organization (PPO) plan, also to be provided by Blue Cross, effective January 1, 2007.
2. Recommend that the Board of Commissioners approve the combined payment, with the Community Development Commission, of the employer-paid subsidy for the 2007 calendar year, with Kaiser Health Plan (Kaiser), Blue Cross HMO and Blue Cross PPO, at an estimated cost of $500,000.
3. Recommend that the Board of Commissioners authorize the Executive Director to fund all medical plan costs using funds included in the Housing Authority's approved Fiscal Year 2006-2007 budget, and funds to be approved through the annual budget process for Fiscal Year 2007-2008, as needed.

PURPOSE/JUSTIFICATION OF THE RECOMMENDED ACTION:

The purpose of the recommended action is to provide employees, during the 2007 calendar year, affordable health coverage that is comparable with plans offered to County employees. The current plans end on December 31, 2006.

FISCAL IMPACT/FINANCING:

The estimated annual cost is $88,000 to increase the combined contribution under the Optional Benefit Plan from $556 to $572 per month, and under the Flexible Benefit Plan from $810 to $830 per month. These increases are provided to assist employees with the purchase of medical, dental, vision and life insurance benefits.

On October 11, 2005, your Board authorized the Executive Director to increase the dollar contribution for the Optional Benefit Plan and the Flexible Benefit Plan.

The employer-paid subsidy is estimated at $500,000 for January 1, 2007 through December 31, 2007.

The current Fiscal Year 2006-2007 budgets of the Housing Authority and Commission include funds for the proposed health plan changes through June 30, 2006. The next annual budget process will include funding for the remaining costs.

The Board of Commissioners of the Housing Authority must approve the plan changes, because Housing Authority funds will be used to pay a portion of the benefits for Commission personnel performing Housing Authority functions.

FACTS AND PROVISIONS/LEGAL REQUIREMENTS:

Employees are currently provided with Blue Cross HMO, Blue Cross POS, and Kaiser as employee medical plan options. During the month of September, the Commission evaluated these plans and the required cost increases for 2007. The medical plan rate increases averaged 9.4%. The rising cost of employee benefit programs makes it difficult for the Commission to fund the proposed 9.4% increase in medical plan insurance and to continue the current level of employer-paid subsidy.

Employees participating in the Blue Cross HMO and Kaiser plans will be required to pay on average an additional 16%. The Blue Cross POS plan will be changed to a PPO plan to further reduce escalating costs. The POS plan allows participants three options of receiving services and benefits: within an HMO network; preferred provider network; and providers outside of Blue Cross' network. Since most employees currently enrolled in the POS primarily utilize preferred providers and providers outside of Blue Cross' network it is prudent to replace the POS with a PPO. Employees participating in this plan will be required to pay on average an additional 19%.

Given that employee costs for health insurance will be increasing again in 2007, the Commission is recommending an increase for participants under the Optional Benefit Plan to $572 per month. Employees covered under the Flexible Benefit Plan receive a Commission contribution expressed as a percentage of salary, but not less than a minimum contribution. The minimum contribution under the Flexible Benefit Plan will increase to $830 per month.

The Commission will continue to provide an employer-paid subsidy consistent with what the County provides to its employees. This amount totaling $500,000 plus the amount contributed by each employee will fund the total cost of medical insurance for 2007.

The new monthly contribution for each plan is provided in Attachment A.

IMPACT ON CURRENT PROGRAM:

The recommended actions are consistent with the principle of promoting the well being of Commission employees and their families by offering comprehensive employee benefits.

Respectfully submitted,

for CARLOS JACKSON
Executive Director

Dear Commissioners:

10-YEAR LEASE FOR SECTION 8 PROGRAM OFFICE SPACE AT 2323 EAST PALMDALE BOULEVARD, PALMDALE (5)

IT IS RECOMMENDED THAT YOUR COMMISSION:

1. Recommend that the Board of Commissioners approve a 10-year Lease Agreement with AP-Palmdale, LLC, Landlord, presented in substantially final form, for the leasing of 9,809 rentable square feet of office space located at 2323 East Palmdale Boulevard in the City of Palmdale, for use by Section 8 Program staff serving the Antelope Valley area; and authorize the Executive Director to execute the Lease Agreement and all other necessary documents, including amendments that will not alter the original intent or approved dollar amounts, to be effective following approval as to form by County Counsel and execution by all parties.
2. Recommend that the Board of Commissioners authorize the Executive Director to use, for the purposes described above, a maximum of $2,152,970 in Section 8 Earned Administrative Fees for the 10-year term of the lease, of which $207,256 is included in the Housing Authority's approved 2006-2007 Fiscal Year Budget, and the remainder will be requested through the annual budget process.

PURPOSE OF RECOMMENDED ACTION:

The purpose of this action is to enter into a lease to provide improved administrative office space for the Section 8 Program.

JUSTIFICATION:

The Section 8 Program has experienced tremendous growth over the past 10 years. The proposed lease will relieve severe overcrowding for approximately 25 staff that administer the Section 8 Program in the Antelope Valley. It will provide the necessary space for program administration and clientele interviews and training, thereby improving program efficiency and customer service.

FISCAL IMPACT:

There is no impact on the County general fund.

FINANCING:

The proposed lease has an initial term of 10 years with two five-year lease options. The initial two-year base rent will be $15,694 per month, excluding utilities. Over the term, the fixed rent increases will not exceed four percent per year based on the Consumer Price Index and the total lease cost is projected at $2,039,880.

The lease rent includes the cost of necessary tenant improvements in the amount of $700,000 to prepare the building and parking lot for occupancy. These will be funded by the Landlord and are included in the Housing Authority's rental payments.

The Housing Authority will provide up to $113,090 for additional tenant improvements and related change orders to be completed by the Landlord and repayable 60 days after acceptance by the Housing Authority. Funds for this expenditure and relocation costs were approved in the Housing Authority's 2006-07 Fiscal Year budget.

Total costs for the 10-year lease and additional tenant improvements and change orders will not exceed $2,152,970. The Housing Authority will use funds included in the approved 2006-2007 budget for the initial six months of rental costs and additional tenant improvements and change orders, and will request funds through the annual budget process for the remaining term.

FACTS AND PROVISIONS/LEGAL REQUIREMENTS:

Section 8 Program staff serving the Antelope Valley currently occupies leased property located at 43770 15th Street West in the City of Lancaster. The lease term expired in May 2006, and the lease is currently on a month-to-month holdover tenancy at a monthly rate of $6,373. It will terminate upon occupancy of the new facility.

The proposed 2323 East Palmdale Boulevard property provides 9,809 rentable square feet of office space and 49 off-street parking spaces. Key provisions for occupying the space are as follows:

- The 10-year term begins upon completion of improvements by the Landlord and acceptance of the improvements by the Housing Authority at a monthly base rent of $15,694.
- A tenant improvement allowance to prepare the premises for occupancy, pursuant to the preliminary plans, is estimated to cost $700,000, or $71.36 per square foot, and is included in the base rental.
- Additional tenant improvements and change order allowances totaling $113,090, or $11.53 per square foot, is reimbursable in a lump sum payment to the Landlord within 60 days of acceptance by the Housing Authority.
- There are 49 unreserved parking spaces included in the rental rate, which is sufficient to meet the parking needs of the Section 8 Program staff and clientele.
- The Landlord will indemnify the Housing Authority for personal injury and loss of personal property, but will not indemnify for consequential damages, i.e. moving costs and increase in rental costs, if subsequent relocation occurs.
- A cancellation provision in the Lease Agreement allows the Housing Authority to cancel any time after the 96th month with not less than 120 days prior written notice, and reimburse the Landlord for the unamortized portion of the base $700,000 in Landlord provided tenant improvements amortized at 8 percent over the 10-year term.
- The Lease Agreement runs co-terminus with a separate lease between the Landlord and the County for the remaining available office space in the 2323 East Palmdale Boulevard building. If either the Housing Authority or County lease is cancelled the other lease must be cancelled, and if the exercise of the option is to be effective in one lease it must also be exercised in the other lease.

- The Housing Authority has two five-year options to renew the Lease Agreement at the greater of 90 percent of market or prior month base rent.
- The Lease Agreement is on a modified full-service basis whereby the Landlord will be responsible for operating and maintenance costs, excluding utility services, which are paid separately by the Housing Authority.

The Housing Authority has followed the principles of the Los Angeles County Strategic Asset Management Plan and the Real Property Acquisition Policy, and has worked closely with the Chief Administrative Office in developing the proposed Lease Agreement.

On September 6, 2006, the Lease Agreement was approved by the Real Estate Management Commission.

The Lease Agreement will be effective following approval as to form by County Counsel and execution by all parties. The initial 10-year term will commence upon acceptance of the tenant improvements by the Housing Authority.

ENVIRONMENTAL DOCUMENTATION

The Housing Authority will share the 2323 Palmdale Boulevard location with County staff. The County has made an initial study of environmental factors and has concluded that this Project will have no significant impact on the environment and no adverse effect on the wildlife resources. Accordingly, a negative Declaration has been prepared and a notice posted at the site as required by the California Environmental Quality Act (CEQA) and the California Administrative Code, Section 15072. No comments to the Negative Declaration were received. A fee must be paid to the State Department of Fish and Game when certain notices are filed with the Registrar-Recorder/County Clerk. The County is exempt from paying this fee when your Board finds that a project will have no impact on wildlife resources. This project is exempt from the provisions of CEQA, pursuant to State CEQA Guidelines 15301, because it involves negligible or no expansion of use beyond what currently exists and does not have the potential for causing a significant effect on the environment.
